Kimberly is a partner in the litigation and arbitration team.

She concentrates on general and complex civil litigation, art law, employment litigation, and trade secret matters. Kimberly handles actions filed in state and federal courts throughout the State of California.

Her commercial litigation experience covers a broad assortment of business disputes, including breach of contract, misappropriation of trade secrets, conversion, and fraud. She has also managed a large number of cases involving breaches of fiduciary duty matters, arising out of various relationships such as trustee/beneficiary, employer/employee, and real estate agent/purchaser.

Kimberly represents numerous clients in new areas of emerging disputes in the DeFi, digital asset and fintech space. She has experience navigating significant disputes facing individuals and entities operating in blockchain, cryptocurrency and the decentralized finance ecosystem. She represents a number of high-profile clients, including some of the major cryptocurrency exchanges in ongoing litigations in the US in a variety of commercial contexts.

Kimberly's art law practice includes the representation of collectors, artists, dealers, appraisers and auction houses in litigation and contractual negotiations. Kimberly has extensive experience with authenticity issues, copyright infringement, as well as transactions in which works of art are pledged as collateral for loans. She was lead counsel in a group of lawsuits to recover collateral for a client that had a perfected security interest in a California gallery's works of art; she successfully recovered damages for valuable works of art by, among others, Marc Chagall, Georgia O'Keeffe, and Jeff Koons, that had been fraudulently conveyed after the gallery owner defaulted. Kimberly is also a contributor to the San Francisco art community, serving as the Chair of the San Francisco Bar Association's Art Law Section, and the Membership Chair and an Executive Committee member of ArtTable's Northern California chapter.

Kimberly also handles litigations in the employment sector for both employers and employees, with a focus on claims involving employment discrimination, harassment and retaliation, disability, and FMLA. She has also litigated numerous matters involving California non-compete, non-disparagement and non-solicitation clauses, and regularly comments on the particularities surrounding California's employment laws as compared to other states in the country.

Track record

Complete defense victory after month long jury trial

Secured defense verdict for digital asset exchange Kraken after a month-long jury trial, defeating plaintiff's whistleblower claims against the company and securing verdicts that plaintiff misappropriated trade secrets from the company and breached his confidentiality obligations and duty of good faith and fair dealing to the company. Kraken stated "We're pleased with the outcome and thankful to testimony from happy Kraken employees and advocacy from our counsel at Withers." For more information on the trial, the verdict, and Withers' and the client's reaction, please read more here.

Crypto fraud dispute

Secured jurisdiction in the US over a long-running cross border commodities fraud dispute involving a top digital asset exchange and secured a ruling that a former customer breached the arbitration agreement in the exchange's binding terms of service by threatening to and actually suing the exchange in the UK.

Financial fraud claims

Defeated financial fraud claims asserted by a former employee against a top digital asset exchange related to the exchange's allocation of company shares, and secured a judgment against the plaintiff for the costs of litigation.

Hotly-contested cryptocurrency lawsuit

Secured a precedent-setting decision that the physical address associated with our client's business – one of the top digital asset exchanges in the world – may qualify as a trade secret and a former employee may be liable under the Defend Trade Secrets Act for their public disclosure of the company's address.
