Duncan is the global head of PR and corporate communications.

He is the friendly face of Withers' press office, assisting journalists with finding the right lawyer from around the firm's international offices who will answer their questions, provide them with quotable comments and enable them to meet their deadlines. Duncan is also responsible for overseeing the firm's profile in the media.

With experience gained from more than 10 years of working in the press teams of several major UK and US-based international law firms, Duncan has an in-depth understanding of reporters' needs and working methods.
